Wally's Boys Breakfast

By Paul Holmes

Saturday before G-Day we had another successful Wally's Boys Breakfast due in large part to the efforts of the indefatigable Loran Smith. We heard a fine speech from a Great Georgian and former Bulldog standout Billy Payne. Billy's late father Porter starred for Coach Butts. On the left I am pictured with Frank Orgel. Frank was a very good player and a teammate of mine. Frank has lived with ALS for some years now. He is a beloved former Coach at Warner Robins High School and later at Auburn with Pat Dye. He is a joy to be around and his positive attitude is contagious. At the right is a group picture of former players in attendance. (Indebted to an excellent photographer and DGD Rob Saye) Wally's Boys is comprised of lettermen who played for the legendary Wally Butts. Since coach's last season was 1960, you can imagine our members are dwindling but after the enthusiasm and great turnout you better believe we will have another one to keep the memory of the "Little Round Man" alive!!

Life After Football

By Miles McGinty

Every year since we have graduated, Jeb Blazevich, Jackson Harris, Charlie Woerner and myself have gotten together in some capacity. Whether that be for the annual letterman golf tournament, a wedding (which we were all groomsmen for each other's weddings), or bachelor party, we have always remained in touch. We also do a Christmas gift exchange every year and have a group text that we talk in almost daily. This past March was an especially fun event. The TEs (Jeb, Jackson, Charlie and myself) came to Savannah for a beach trip and we each brought our wives and kids. The fun part about this, is that Jackson, Charlie and I all had sons within a couple weeks of each other! This picture was taken during story time right before bed. Charlie's reading of The Pout-Pout Fish had the little guys enraptured. Though it wasn't exactly a restful, peaceful beach trip, it was a memory making experience that was a great continuation of our tradition as a group. Looking forward to seeing these guys between the hedges one day!

Go dawgs!

2023 UGA FAMILY OF THE YEAR AWARD PAUL & SUSAN HOLMES FAMILY

Paul and Susan Holmes and their Family were selected by the UGA Alumni Association as its UGA 2023 Family of the Year. The award was presented by President Jere Morehead at an Alumni luncheon at the Tate Center Friday April 21, 2023. Paul Holmes lettered from 1960-62. Congratulations to you and your family!!

From alumni.uga.edu...

For nearly a century, the Holmes family, both immediate and extended, has been a fixture at the University of Georgia with four generations earning degrees, advancing their careers and serving others in Athens and beyond.

It began with Sam Dykes who earned a degree in agricultural engineering in 1935 after playing football for legendary coach Harry Mehre. His daughter Susan (BS '63) cherished the stories her father shared with her about his time in Athens, and it inspired her to set her own path to the Classic City. It was there that she met John Paul Holmes Jr., (BBA '63) who was busy building his own name on the gridiron as a three-year letterman at UGA before playing professionally with the NFL's Dallas Cowboys and Denver Broncos. Both cherished their days with Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Phi Mu.

The two married in 1962, drawing from their experiences and education at UGA to fuel their professional and civic endeavors. Paul helped found Life of the South, served as the chairman of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce and was chair of the Technical College of Georgia system.

Susan found her calling in public service, serving as mayor of Monticello and a member of the Georgia House of Representatives for a combined 24 years. As mayor, she worked with members of the Carl Vinson Institute of Government to help the town receive assistance with business development, historic preservation, leadership classes, environmental design and more.

Paul credited the roots Georgia gave him as crucial to his success: "Entering the business world, I realized quickly it is all about relationships and those I made at UGA figured prominently in any success I enjoyed," said Paul. "And of course, having played football at Georgia opened so many doors for me. I have always said if you want to make Georgia home for your career and family, going to UGA is the wisest decision you can make."

Susan and Paul have three children – John Paul III, Sam and Cammie – all of whom found a home in Athens. In 1986, John Paul III (BBA '85) married Lou Sims Holmes (BBA '84), a three-year varsity basketball player and Phi Mu member. The two now reside in Macon.

Sam (BBA '87) was named president of the Interfraternity Council during his time on campus and like his dad and brother, loved being a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. After graduating, he married Lara Horne Holmes (BBA '88) and later served as chair of the UGA Foundation and UGA Real Estate Foundation. Sam is a current member of the UGA Athletic Board and Board of Regents, and he and Lara reside in Atlanta.

Cammie (BS '90) was a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority with her sister-in-law Lara. The fourth generation of the Holmes family has made their way to UGA with five of Susan and Paul's grandchildren either completing or pursuing degrees at the University.

John Paul IV (BBA '12) married fellow graduate Katie McShan Holmes (BBA '12) in 2017, and the duo reside in Atlanta. Sims (BBA '14) served as president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon a few years before Sam Jr. (BBA '19) held the same title. Sam Jr. married another Bulldog, Elizabeth Bowers Holmes (AB '17). Their grandchildren Susan Weiss Holmes (BBA '18) and Shorter Hill McCook, who is a current first-year student, can also claim Athens and Kappa Kappa Gamma as their college home.

Paul and Susan welcomed their first great-grandchild, Evelyn Louise Holmes, into the world in July 2021, and if history repeats itself, she'll be in Athens before long.

This Isn't the First Time There Have Been a Group of 'PhillyDawgs'

By Loran Smith

When the Eagles drafted Georgia's Nolan Smith soon after having picked Jalen Carter earlier, a couple of calls came in regarding the foursome of Bulldogs on the Philadelphia roster—Nakobe Dean and Jordan Davis having joined the team a year earlier.

While it has not become a long-standing tradition, four Bulldogs on the Eagles' roster has happened before. When the team of the late NFL Commissioner Bert Bell won the NFL title in 1960, there were four former UGA players who were members of that world championship team: Marion Campbell, Bobby Walston, Riley Gunnels and Theron Sapp.

With Norm Van Brocklin at quarterback, the Eagles defeated Green Bay 17-13. There was a historical footnote to the game in that it would be the only playoff defeat suffered by Vince Lombardi who had just taken over as the Packers head coach.

It would be the last year in the City of Brotherly Love for Campbell and Walston. Campbell went into coaching, working as an assistant for the New England Patriots, and Walston eventually became the director of player personnel for the Chicago Bears. A couple of years after that, Dave Lloyd, linebacker, and Pete Case, offensive guard, signed with the Eagles—Lloyd by trade and Case via the draft, keeping a foursome of Bulldogs on the roster, intact.

There was a good run by the Eagles in those years with Sonny Jurgensen following Van Brocklin at quarterback, but it didn't last long. The Eagles traded Jurgensen to Washington where he became a cult hero in the nation's capital.

As the '23 draft continued last weekend, the news flashed that Kelee Ringo would become the fifth Philly/Dawg. And if that wasn't enough, there was a trade that brought former Bulldog running back, D'Andre Swift to Philadelphia, his hometown.

Not sure if that is a record for a modern NFL team, but it sure is doggone impressive. Had that happened in the late Dan Magill's time, he would have been hell bent on bringing the Philly/Dawgs back home for a banquet tribute. He often did such when a milestone achievement took place.

When I was in the Coast Guard and stationed in Groton, Conn., I often spent the weekends in New York City in the fall. I could get a deluxe rate as a serviceman at an old hotel, the Century, on West 46th Street. Subway tokens were 15 cents, the best deal since the Dutch bought Manhattan for less than two bucks.

I had become acquainted with Will Grimsley, a senior writer with the Associated Press, at the Masters in the spring. He would give me Western Union passes for New York Giants games. I had to sit in the aisle, but for that experience it was one of grandeur for a country boy from Middle Georgia. Will's generosity brought about an ultimate high with a Western Union pass that enabled me to see a World Series game between the Yankees and the San Francisco Giants.

I was fortunate to witness Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle on the grand stage in the Bronx, the original Yankee Stadium. Unforgettable.

On other weekends, I could take the subway to Penn Station and journey to Franklin Field on the Pennsylvania campus and attend an Eagles home game. The train, although I don't recall the tab, was cheap and Theron Sapp, who, like all the Eagle players, got two tickets to home games, arranged for me to sit with his girlfriend, who was not always the same girlfriend.

Jurgensen and Tommy McDonald were a hot passing combo in those years and the iron man on the team, Chuck Bednarik, lined up at center on offense and linebacker when the defense came on the field.

Am sure there will now be an incentive to organize a trip to see the Philly/Dawgs bond with the ultimate objective of winning a Super Bowl ring to go with the national championship rings they collected in Athens.

That would be fun, but there will have to be an impactful budget amendment compared to what it cost back in 1962.
